“The Chief Threat Assessment Officer will provide proactive collaborative oversight and support to the University in the identification, assessment and management of threats and/or threatening behavior that may lead to acts of targeted violence against the USC campus and community.”
Violence prevention is more than the deterrence of physical harm. It is the restoration of health and well-being for individual of concern and the impacted community.
Overarching Questions:

• What is current/immediate level of risk?
• Even if low risk, is the person of concern engaging in behaviors that create reasonable fear, discomfort or distress?
• Under what circumstances is the behavior likely to get worse/better?
• What can the University do to address the unacceptable behavior without increasing violence risk vulnerability?
BE PEACEFUL AND STOP SCHOOL VIOLENCE
